Telling Time by the Shadows John Fitzgerald

John FitzGerald's Telling Time by the Shadows is an unusually frank confrontation with God. FitzGerald's poems challenge the emptiness of the universe, questioning how we can intuit God's presence in the shadows.

Helene Cardona says

John M. FitzGerald's TELLING TIME BY THE SHADOWS is an extraordinary and brilliant collection of poems of love and longing, written at the dawn of a relationship.

A very intimate and deeply moving book, it is a testament to FitzGerald's incredibly wide range. His first collection, Spring Water, a novel in verse about the mental of a serial killer, could not be more different.
