Again Diamond this was another good read... This was a nice way to end this series... Yes you still had my emotions all over the place from anger to happiness to disgust to shock... There was a few things that I read that just did not make sense like how can Valentina look at a picture of Jerrods family and know it was from 3 years ago just by looking at it... and a few other things... But in the end it was definitely a nice way to pull it all together...

Man Takari went through so much stuff with her family... Yet she was still standing strong... She held her family down through all the chaos that was caused by her daughter and ex mother in law... I was glad that she found a man that could make her so happy... Yes there was times that I didn't think that they would make it because Za'kai was in his feelings about things that Takari did or said... But Takari is a type of woman that no man wants to let go of... She is what every man is looking for in a wife... Unfortunately for Jerrod he lost her because he let his jealousy mama get in his head and he didn't appreciate what he had in his wife until it was to late...

Speaking of Jerrods rotten, no good , scheming lying mama... I could not stand her and how she talked and treated not only Takari but her own grandchildren... And what happened with Jerrod was all her fault... Yet she wants to try and put the blame on Takari... Even when she was told about herself she was blaming Takari for that... Then for her son Rodney to really sit there and defend his mothers actions... This is why she is the way she is... I loved when her other son put her in her place.... She thought she was better than everyone else because she had a little bit of money... Well let me tell you miss lady... Money does not make you better than anyone and because of how you are... You will never find happiness...

As for Journey... I was glad to see her finally make the right decision... I mean I thought she was really going to try and protect Raheem... But she finally came to her senses... I think that Milton's death brought her to the realization that she is just a child and she does need her mother... I loved that she finally stopped trying to make grown women decisions because we all see how that played out for her... She was hit with so many devastating events at one time... Her eyes were now open and she can see that her mother was not trying to ruin her life but help to make it better...

I hated to see what Raheem's baby mother did to Journey... I hope that she will have to pay for it... But for some reason... That part of the storyline just fell off... I would like to know what happened after she did what she did...

Overall I was glad with the way that Takari and Za'kai was able to find the happiness that they both deserved... I was also glad to see Journey finally live like the child she is and stop trying to be grown... She will have plenty of time for that... Now to wait for "Tying The Knot In The 305: Za'kai & Takari" #0850

Life after Jerrod!!!!

Sonya was a trip, she hated her own grandkids and was very delusional. Journey it took such a tragedy to happen for her to finally see the light. Marco I'm glad that he realized that his family needed him and he had to man up, that hate wasn't a good look for him. what can I say about Mr Kemp the way he loved Takari and her kids was exactly what she needed to move forward....

All's well that ends well

Journey actually became a kid again! Karma had its way in this one. Valentina, Jerrod, Raheem and even Marco got a taste of karma. I felt like I knew and loved Takari and enjoyed her finding happiness with Za'Kai. Even with being hit with tragedy after tragedy she stayed upbeat.

Diamond always write a ?????

Journey fell for the wrong man at a very young age and cost her a really good friend. She does the right thing and makes Raheem pay for his wrong doings. Takari loved her husband but he betrays her and falls victim to the wrong woman taking him away from his family. Takari loves Za'Kai and there building something solid. They hit a lot of bumps along the way but end up on top.#0850

Amazing Read

Zakai and Takari ended this series with an amazing relationship in spite of all the tragedies life sent their way. Journey had to be a very strong teenager because she went through some very tough times in a short span! Jerrod experienced a hefty dose of karma and his mama too! Job well done, Diamond and I can't wait to read about the wedding!

Good Read

I expected more from book 3 but it was just ok. Jerod died at the beginning of the book, I wish he would of had more story (karma) Valentina was just stupid. I wish Sonya would have gotten cancer or something but nothing her story just ended. Pinky jumped on Journey and nothing came from that just a waste of story. Anyway I love Bully and Shrimp together... Hopefully the wedding story will be better.

Love Me

Sooo this series definitely had drama, tears and more drama. Journey's storyline was definitely crazy. She was trying to be grown before time and everything went wrong. She had to get knocked off her high horse in order to get a grip on reality. Now Raheem was the worst kind of boy cause he banked on Journey being young so that he could get her. Both knew what they were doing was wrong but did it anyways. Glad that grandma whipped Raheem's baby mama ass. Now Valentina was a victim but chose to kill instead of walk away. She was manipulated by those two idiots but that mama was the worse. Now my two favorites, Takari and Za'Kai... I loved that both of them don't take no mess from each other. They put each other in their place when needed but they love they share it's amazing. Za'Kai was well on his way to bossing up so that was a given. Loved this!!!

Great read

This read I enjoyed so much. I'm glad that Journey had matured so much and that she took back what Raheem took from her. Takari and Za'Kai I loved them together because they complaint each other very very well. He handle her attitude and she handle his joking ways. It's sad what happened to Jerrod but that a prime example about playing with people heart. His momma Sonya just disgust me to my core and I couldn't stand her. I can't wait for Diamond to give us Takari and Za'Kai wedding in the 305 because I know it going to be lit.

Imma Booker says

Good ending to the series. Something unexpected in this one is that the villains didn't always act on their villainous thoughts, which actually made it even more realistic, but still entertaining. I enjoyed it.

Review !!

What I loved about Bully was that he was all man . He went through alot growing up and he was determined not to go back. Ta Kari made me mad at certain times she had a man that loved her flaws and all and she didn't want to act right. Journey grew up. Raymond SMH that's all I can say .Jerrod mama was a piece of work. Marco was jealous and for what I still dont know. Cant wait for the wedding.
