Jules says

Catching up on this series. I'm a sucker for Hickman's grandiose plotting and dialogue and this comic basically lets him go hog wild. Must-read for anyone who loves alt. history pre-apocalyptic sci-fi westerns. Dragotta is a great artist as well though I think sometimes he relies too much on that open-mouthed horror scream.

Nelson says

I can see this as a TV show

Tony says

Really like this series. Not the strongest of the 3 I've read so far, but still really liking where this is heading.

Stephanie Davis says

Family rivalry? Maybe just a shade.

Derek says

"THE HOUSE OF MAO"

Death and his two witches travel to New Shanghai, to the Imperial City of Mao V, to collect his wife, Xiaolian. But there are other forces on his trail.

Rebecca Schwarz says

Better than Volume 2, though still with a large cast of characters and a far-ranging plot. The story is still keeping me at a bit of an emotional remove. It's more than good enough though. The artwork continues to be amazing and as some of the disparate story lines weave back together I'm reading on in the hope that story is finding its footing again. This promises to be quite a powerful series if the author can manage all the elements.

Marco Silva says

The story is gaining momentum. Good art and more backgrounds designs in this issue.

East of West #3: The House of Mao

“You come face to face with love, and before the sun sets, you've become someone you didn't used to be. It makes the old new. Makes dead things live. Love makes you into something better.”

“The Great Wall is comin' down ... and my JUDGMENT will follow shortly.”

The beast finally makes its move. There's not much to say besides the fact that I love this series and can't get enough of it. Top notch stuff as usual
