They came from different worlds. She was a Texas beauty who'd known privilege and luxury all her life. He was a photo-journalist who'd spent a lonely childhood in foster homes, battling for his very survival. Yet from the moment Amy Carpenter and Sam Robbins met, they knew they were meant to be together. Nothing could come between them, not even Sam's doubts that he wasn't good enough for Amy...until Sam's job takes him away from her -- to far-off Nepal...

Desperately lonely without the man she loves, Amy is devastated when news arrives that Sam has had a fatal accident. Then Sam's best friend Justin Malone enters the picture. Rocked by grief and loss, Amy and Justin turn to each other for comfort and companionship. As their friendship flames into something more, Amy must decide whether to accept the quiet happiness that Justin offers -- even though she can't forget the man whose passion still burns in her heart...

Anne Turnley says

Wow! What a romance!

Amy waits for a man who makes her heart zip but, she loses him all too soon. Will she accept the love of his best friend? What about her best friend and her feelings? Quite a puzzle.

Emily says

If you're looking for comedy, this is not for you. If you want light hearted, this is not for you. If you can handle sad and depressing content with the hope of happily ever after, then give this book a shot.

Warning. This book is kind of depressing, with everyone in love with someone who loves them but isn't in love with them. Tough it out, and you may just get your happy ending.

SandyL says

Sam Robbins is a nature photographer for World of Nature, and travels all over the globe to capture images of wildlife most of us never see. He's an adventurer and a risk taker, and figures he'll never settle down. He likes his nomadic life, and after surviving a difficult childhood he likes his freedom and being able to pick up girls wherever his travels take him. After taking some unnecessary risks on his last assignment, his boss orders him to take a vacation, which is the last thing he wants - he'd rather move on to his next assignment.

Amy Carpenter is an art teacher who came from a privileged upbringing and she's not a one-night-stand kind of girl (although her best friend is telling her she needs a good f.) When she's not teaching, she volunteers at the local animal shelter. She meets Sam, after he finds a kitten and brings it in to the shelter. And, even though their lifestyles are very different, attraction doesn't discriminate and they end up going out, falling in love and getting engaged. Sam is offered an assignment in the Himalayas and he promises Amy that after this one he'll slow down his travelling. Tragically, Sam again takes a risk that causes him to fall off a cliff-face into a gorge. It takes days to get word out for searchers, but Sam can't be found and is assumed dead.

Somewhat predictably, Sam had asked his best friend Justin to take care of Amy in his absence. And Justin is in love with Amy. Oh, and Justin's sister is in love with Sam. Oh, and Amy's best friend Lark is in love with Justin. Sigh.....this is where the story lost me.

This was a seriously depressing book. I didn't even finish it. Everyone was in love with everyone else and everyone was heartbroken. No fun at all!

Debra saysWith This Ring

Any wanted a relationship like her parents had. But at twenty-seven she hadn't found her other half. Sam was a rolling stone. He went places others just dreamed about. When they met she thought she had found her other half. But he had doubts. He didn't think he was good enough. On his last trip abroad he was lost presumed dead. His best friend Justin became her rock. They grew close. But what happens when Sam finds his way back to her. Will she stay with the stable home loving Justin or the wondering stone Sam?

Deatrice Farrior saysSam and Amy

I thought the story was good; however, I lost interest in Amy. I didn't like her and Justin together and I didn't like the fact she couldn't make up her mind. She never loved Justin the way she loved Sam so it shouldn't have been such a hard decision to make.

Amy Barber saysOk story

I liked the beginning and the end but the middle kind of drove me crazy and there were some loose ends. What about the sister who loved him? Did Justin move on? This story needed a little less stuff in the middle and a stronger end.

Sandra Robinson saysNot for me at all, total disappointment

The girl was stupid. The guy was selfish and Justin was the victim. I don't like the way this book played out

Cary says

This was a bit uncomfortable at times as the plot twisted and turned. But not much sexual descriptions and characters you care about so that is good.

Debbie DiFiore says

I just didn't like the heroine. The H was considered dead for two years, she moved on with his friend, slept with him and got engaged to him and then when the H came back she was confused. I just didn't like her or her Mother because they were both downers. Justin was okay but I thought he was an opportunist. I know the H was supposed to be dead but her not being celibate was a dealbreaker for me. I was disappointed in her and I just couldn't get past it. There was an HEA but I feel that the hero could have done better. I did like the epilogue. It was touching. Just because I liked the H so much.

Angela says

Ok book. Man and woman fall in love. Man goes overseas to do his job and falls off a cliff and presumed dead. Woman and man's best friend get engaged. Man is alive and had amnesia that he recovered from. Comes back to find woman and best friend engaged. It was ok. For me it lacked chemistry and drama. Just very lackluster.

She's working at the pet adoption place, he brings in a kitten he found. It's instant attraction. But it will be a very difficult journey to happiness.
