Starfighter Chapter 3 Hamlet Machine

Cain and Abel are transferred to the battleship Sleipnir for a critical mission, and the further they venture into enemy space, the deeper their relationship becomes. As Cain struggles to make a name for himself among his new shipmates, the Commanders assign Abel to a project that may give the Alliance a decisive advantage in the war against the Colterons. The Commanders, however, may not necessarily have Abel's best interests at heart...

Now that's what I'm talkin about.

LOVING Cain now. Oh the difference two chapters can make.

Of course it's possible I'll strongly dislike him again by the end of the next chapter but that's why this is so good.

A lot more pages once again for this chapter and lots of smexy.

Also lots of intrigue. Who can be trusted?

Miriam says

Still very strong, although I was confused at a couple points. What does Keeler keep looking concerned or anxious about (maybe we're not supposed to know at this point)? Who is the boy that looks like Abel in the scene with the commanding officer, and is this a flashback or the current timeline? Why do the navigators look so much alike? We know Abel has an elite family far away, so it isn't that they're clones or something like that.

Looking forward to getting some answers, hopefully. I had thought looking at the contents page that this was finished but in terms of pacing and amount remaining it doesn't feel like it. I guess we'll see soon enough.

Take back everything I said about the drawing...it's superb!! Cain and Abel go into battle against the Colterons, and their relationship strengthens but something's not quite right on board the Alliance ship.

10/12/14 - Read to Ch. 4 Pg. 29: I wasn't too sure I'd like this in the beginning, but the drawings steadily improved as well as the plot. Bonus points for the explicit content ;) Going with 3.5 stars for now.

What that basically means is, "I don't rightly know how in fuck's name that I managed to survive all this time without getting back to this comic and reading the most incredible chapter I have EVER READ. HOW?? HOW????? WHY DID I TAKE ME THIS LONG TO GET BACK TO IT?! IT IS PERFECTION!!!!!"

ehem

But that cliffhanger... good GRIEF, man.....

Re-read AGAIN. 2/17/16

I'm conflicted. I cannot read yaoi anymore. I mean...the story might be good, there's erotica, etc. but...just no. the trope feels way too yaoi for me, which is not bad, it's okay. I used to read a lot of yaoi but it doesn't interest me anymore and makes me feel conflicted cause of all the....things that usually go in the gay literature discussions. So nope.

Kristen Burns says

Well, well, well, I think there was actually more story than sex this time! Still plenty of sex though, so nobody panic. I also liked Abel more---he had more of a backbone---and if only Cain hadn't been so abusive and sociopathic in the beginning, I think I might actually like him. Apparently he likes cuddles (he moved their mattresses next to each other on the floor so they could sleep together instead of in bunk beds), and he even shared his food with Abel at one point. And that scene after the mission when they hugged <3 There were also a couple pages in the beginning that showed how they've been getting along with each other, which was cute, but it was so brief; I wanted more like that. I liked seeing how all the different teams worked together on the mission though. It's still not exactly the deepest thing I've ever read, but this comic is growing on me.

I loved, loved, loved it.

This book was better than Chapter 2, i loved it more.

Cain & Abel's characters were way more developed here.

Especially Cain's, we saw a new side of him, the caring good one.

I loved it. <3

Welllllll... I didn't like this one as much as the others but I still liked it.

I gotta be honest. The space war thing is not really my thing, I'm only here for Cain and Abel and how they grow and how they have sex, lol. So this chapter had more space war stuff so I guess that's why it's not my favorite.

I'm still liking it though! Can't wait to read chapter 4 tomorrow!
