A book my 6 yr old loved, a little old for my preschoolers. A solid reading level 4 book, this reader has a good amount of advanced vocabulary words, but not so long that it discourages a new reader. Used it for his read out loud book, which was perfect. It took about 20 mins for him to read and had just enough new vocabulary words to make it challenging. Also, it was a fun and interesting story he could get into. He liked it so much, he asked for more by this author. Great reading book!

Mark says

Another excellent book in this series. Loved reading this with my little girl.

A bit reminiscent of Goldilocks as Cocoa decides he doesn't like the barn and thinks he should live in the house until Kate reminds him about all the wonderful things that make the barn his home. Again, Erica Silverman captures these characters and surrounding perfectly with humor and fun.

This is a great series. I don't know why but the simple text makes me happy. I love that cocoa wants to move inside. Kate has to prove the barn is better. Ok and I love it that the apples are plastic. Nough said. Grades K+

This fifth title in the beginning chapter book series features Cocoa finding his way into Cowgirl Kate's house. She tells him he must go back to the barn before there's trouble, but he refuses to leave--he's having too much fun exploring the indoors. Betsy Lewin's watercolors are lively and lend a sense of fun to the story, which lacks the humor found in some other beginning chapter series (Cynthia Rylant's Mr. Putter & Tabby and Poppleton, and Denys Cazet's Minnie & Moo, for example), but is still appealing to young horse lovers, who will enjoy tackling these books on their own.

Talking horse, Cocoa, wants to move into the house. Funny like all of them.

Cocoa the horse would much rather live in Kate's house...preferably somewhere near the refrigerator. Kate manages to convince him that the barn has some pretty nice qualities as well.

AR 2.3 Cocoa decides that she wants to live in the house with Cowgirl Kate. Cowgirl Kate's parents are gone for the day and she keeps trying to talk Cocoa out of the house and back into the barn. Pretty comical. Girls who love horses will love this series.

My 3-year-old picked this out at the library. It's actually intended for the easy reader audience, but it worked fairly well as a read aloud at bedtime (a little long). She was amused by the horse's antics in the house. Based on her response, I was surprised she only asked to read this once.

A sweet little 5-chapter book, perfect level for my 1st grader. Simple but funny storyline. Easy to remember from day to day. I want to read the rest of the series, or rather, get them for Caleb to read. He's not quite as excited about it as I am though.

See Cowgirl Kate's house from Cocoa's point of view. "You could put a lot of oats in that bin! is a common observation. This is a cute series of transitional readers. This story in particular should appeal to both boys and girls who love animals.

Liz says

Cowgirl Kate and Cocoa is a colorful and darling early reader chapter book series. Cowgirl Kate and her best bud Cocoa the horse go on adventures around their farm together in Horse in the House Cocoa sneaks in Kate's house while her parents are away. Cocoa is shocked at the strange stalls Kate and her parents live in. They are so small and there aren't any oats. He is rather taken with the refrigerator though! Kate finally gets Cocoa out of the house just in time before her parents get back and reminds Cocoa how great his barn, how the sunlight streams in between the crack in the wall and the comforting smell of saddle leather. Kate's favorite thing about the barn though is Cocoa and Cocoa agree that his favorite part of the house is Kate, well and the refrigerator.

I thought this book was great, it has a interesting story and each book in the series is different. You don't feel like you are reading the same book over and over again. The watercolor illustrations are friendly and wonderful. I think this early reader series is a great one and will quickly become a favorite of any little cowgirl!
