The Case of the Dragon's Dilemma

Dragons, battles, a Siren attack and a deal Sam may come to regret leave Sam and Bob in danger...and result in Mikhail finding a mate.

Bob and Sam take their kind-of-adopted-now vampire daughter Mal to look at new schools. Mikhail is left to babysit the last of the remaining rescued children whilst they are away.

When Sirens appear to steal her away, he is left facing the attack alone until a mysterious hero comes to his aid. Ryujin, or Jin to his friends, is a dragon shifter and his role as Captain of the Dragon Guards puts him in direct conflict with Mikhail.

The minute he sees Mikhail he knows what he wants. Now if he can only get Mikhail to see the same.

The Case of the Sinful Santa

Zephaniel, the Angel of Vengeance, Nick Klauson, nephew to Santa, Christmas magic, zombies in the school and a necromancer causing chaos...and at the centre of it all-Mal.

Zephaniel is the Angel of Vengeance and is tracking down his cousin Danjal for misuse of brimstone. When he walks into a bar and finds Nick Klauson drowning his sorrows, he is instantly drawn to him. Could this be his fated mate?

When Nick and Zeph join forces to deal with zombies in Mal's school, sparks fly. Add in a demon, a wolf and a necromancer, and Sam and Bob have a hunt on their hands.

this edition contains book 3 and 4 if this series and these two were really different.
book 3 was Mikhails book, whom I really like. unfortunately the writing reminded me of the first book which I did not really like. I hoped for a better story for him the fourth book was much better.
I really enjoyed the story around Nick and Zeph

Merissa (Archaeolibrarian) says

We continue Sam and Bob's adventures in the new volume of the End Street Series. They are still trying to place all of the children that they rescued from the sirens, but there is one child that doesn't respond to them. Mikhail spends some time with her whilst Bob and Sam are looking at schools for Mal, only for the sirens to make a reappearance. He fights them and tries to protect the child from another being that has entered the bathroom. The other being ends up being Jin, who is actually there to protect Eliza who turns out to be a Dragon princess. In the second story, we meet Nick, who is half-human and half Christmas Elf. He doesn't think highly of himself due to the derogatory remarks that have constantly come his way from his family. He meets Zeph, an angel.

In both of these stories, the fated mates bond snaps into place immediately for one, whilst the other takes at least a couple of minutes longer. Sam and Bob still have the same, amusing and hot relationship. With each book, the story gets deeper and the characters more intricate. Definitely recommended if you want a light, humorous, paranormal, M/M story!

The Case of the Dragon's Dilemma

In the aftermath of rescuing the children, Sam and Bob are now parents of little vampire girl Mal and as such they have to find a suitable school for her and they still have another girl under their care, one who has refused to speak out or give any information regarding who she is, until Mikhail gets her to tell him her name. After being attacked by sirens who come through a portal in Sam's bathroom, Eliza, the little girl, manages to call upon her guard, dragon shifter Jin, who helps them get rid of the sirens and ends up being Mikhail's mate.

Sam, Bob and Mikhail join Jin and Eliza to deliver her safely back to her father, the Dragon king, and hopefully find out who is behind her kidnapping.

I loved this book! Sam and Bob are as awesome as ever and I just adore their banter and chemistry. And I already loved Mikhail, so it was lovely to see him find such an amazing mate in Jin, who was just perfect for him.

I really liked that we get to know a bit more about what Sam really is and have him still trying to deny it, even if he's starting to accept that he's not fully human.

The case was interesting and I just adored the characters, while I'm not always fond of multiple POVs in books, in this series, it has worked great. All in all, a fantastic read! Very recommendable!

Rating: 4.5 Stars

The Case of the Sinful Santa

This book was a bit different from the others. It was a bit darker, less fun, with less Bob and Sam as true protagonists. I guess when you're dealing with necromancers, zombies and dead angels, there's not much to do there.

Still, the story was intriguing and while I didn't realize who the bad guy was until they pointed it out to me, it also gave the case closure, even if there still are a few loose ends there.

I wasn't too sure of Zeph at first, but he won me over with his devotion for Nick. And Nick was sweet and shy, and I liked seeing him gain confidence the longer he was with Zeph. The bit with Santa at the end was a bit odd, but other than that, I ended up liking the story, perhaps not as much as the others, but it was still a good read for me.

Rating: 4 Stars!!!

Re-Read March 2017:

I never thought I'd be able to re-read a book(or series in this case) less than 6 months after my initial read but I did and loved it all the more. Still get a laugh out of a vampire named Bob.

Original Read October 2016:

Dragon's Dilemma: I don't think I've ever read a story with dragons or dragon shifters before but after reading this, I'd love to read more, who knew dragons could be so sexy and good? Once again, one case leads into another. I won't touch on the case itself but I will say that Sam the human-non human and Bob the vampire continue to grab hold of my heart and crack me up at the same time. You can't help but cheer them on in this crazy world that Sam has found himself thrust into.

Sinful Santa: When a series like End Street happens, there is the potential for new characters with each entry but you don't expect them to all carry over from one to the next. I mean when a case concludes so should the clients, right? Well not in this series and neither does it get crowded, each character has his or her place in their world and in the continuing story. Who knew Santa's family could be so interesting? Well, you will after you've read Case of the Sinful Santa, which in itself is a bit of conundrum, Santa(or his family at least) taking part in anything that involves sin, what a devilish idea and RJ & Amber handle it interestingly.

This is probably the most heart-wrenching story of the series so far and I won't lie and say I wasn't scared a bit for Sam and Bob. I am such a Bob fan and it would be impossible not to love Sam, so let me just say I want to see them happy no matter what. With that said this is a great addition to the End Street Series and I can't wait for book 6.

Book 5 picks up pretty much where the previous book left off, Sam and Bob are trying to figure out what Gargoyle really is. Sam is approached by a human man who wants to hire him to find out if his boyfriend is cheating on him. Thinking this will be an easy one, he takes on the case. Utilizing an enchanted camera Sam snaps a photo of their mark and another mysterious man. When the photo reveals that the mysterious man is the soul mate of Gargoyle, Sam and Bob are thrust into a modern day fairytale.

Star-crossed lovers, Fae Royalty, curses and spells and a whole list of paranormal characters this is definitely the hardest case Sam has seen so far. If you're a fan of The End Street Series you have to pick up this latest book. I highly recommend!

This two story collection is great fun. Sam is human--really he is! Why do people keep asking him what he is? Sam is fairly paranormal prejudiced human, but when he opens up a detective agency in the same location as his uncle, he's inundated with them. I chuckled at the constant running joke of paranormals suggesting that Sam wasn't quite human and Sam resolutely ignoring all evidence to the contrary. There's a good amount of sexy times along with all the mind-reading (Bob) and other hi-jinx. The first book in the duo involves the case of Eliza, the last of the kidnapped children from the first book, who turns out to be a dragon. When her guard shows up, he and Mikhil the vampire-siren hybrid from previous books discover themselves to be fated mates. Now all need to solve the case of who betrayed Princess Eliza. There are lots of cool dragon facts and an interesting mating tradition. Mikhail panics a bit at the thought of having to live in the dragon world if he accepts the mating but finds he can't really deny his true mate. There is a great twist in this one too! The second book/case involves a necromancer who is threatening Sam and Bob's adopted daughter's school. In this book the featured couple are Zeph, an angel, and Nick who is a half-elf who is part of Santa's family. Nick has very low self esteem as a result of being snubbed and bullied by his family, who he doesn't fit in with at all. Zeph's protective alpha stance and love gives Nick a reason to value himself. Zeph makes a great rescuing figure, all confident, powerful, and tender. As usual there are a bevy of colorful side characters and plenty of mini mysteries and plot wrinkles. The series continues with it's trademark humor and sweet (but spicy) romance. I'm glad that the authors reissued the stories after the originals went out of print and the box set is a great deal. I will definitely keep reading the next cases!

Story One: The Case of the Dragon's Dilemma

End Street Volume 2 has another 2 stories in it. The first one is The Case of the Dragon's Dilemma. This story has Jin, the Commander of the Dragon Army coming to the aide of his Princess. Of course he comes face to face with Mikail and all the sparks fly. Can I just say that the fact that Mikail finds love made my heart flutter. I have felt from the very beginning that he is so alone. Anyway, moving on...

Again one of my favorite things that the authors do it entwine the stories. Past characters come into play as well as setting the stage for the next case. It keeps you latched on to Sam and his hoard of happenings. And Sam.... This human non human whatever he is cracks me up. I mean he is hilarious! My sides hurt when he talks! Totally my favorite character of this series. And Bob and him? Priceless. They are like an old married couple. It's great with all the suspense that's thrown that there's humor thrown in there. With this story new and dangerous characters are revealed. You thought Sirens are bad? Ha! Wait till you see what threatens the world now! This was a totally fabulous story!

The Case of the Sinful Santa

I think each book gets better and better. With new characters entering the picture each time you'd think it would get crowded. It doesn't! It adds to the awesomeness that is this series! And when a character of a previous book swoops in to help Sam you cheer!

Each book we see a little more of what is happening with Sam. He's becoming so powerful and no one knows what he is. Something tells me when it's revealed it's going to be wondrous and I can't wait. Mal, Same and Bob's vampire daughter, is in a new school and of course there's trouble afoot. It takes an Angel, a wolf, an elf, a vampire, a ghost, a slew of magic and Sam to make it right! It was suspenseful at times.

Nick is half elf half human and of course he's fated mates with an Avenging Angel. When they have to literally fight for their love. When it was in question and for a moment you think this is their end. They aren't allowed to love, my heart broke. I cried. But you know what they say? Sometimes it takes just one voice. One person. To make a difference.

I loved this story so much and the unfolding mystery of it all! Absolutely and positively brilliant!

Love this series, such great fun and wonderful characters :)

A very light read. The story lines are very basic and not deeply developed but I did enjoy being able to read and not think too hard. The two stories follow directly after one another and are really one but involve different MC's. Even Santa Klaus makes an appearance along with demons, goblins, vampires, angels, fairies, zombies, ghosts etc etc and of course Sam the nearly human.

Carra says

One of the things I like best about this series is the wide range of paranormals featured. Where else can you find vampires, werewolves, ghosts, gargoyles, dragons, the Fae, angels, demons, sirens, and oh yes-the elves of Santa's family all in one series? Heck, even in a single story? It makes for some highly entertaining reading that makes you laugh along the way.

In The Case of the Dragon's Dilemma, we get to see Mikhail-a half vampire, half siren-get his chance at a mate when Jin comes along. There's dark things afoot amongst the dragons, and Mikhail, Jin, Sam and Bob head out to figure out what's going on. There's the usual witty banter between the characters, along with a bit of mystery and action as they work together to go after a necromancer who's trying to cause havoc.

Yes, there's a bit of insta-love going on with Mikhail and Jin, but for me it's perfectly acceptable in the guise of soul mates (one of my favorites in paranormal stories). The two of them together are sexy and hot, but the intimate scenes don't take over the story--the mystery is always central in the End Street stories.

The necromancer story arc continues in The Case of the Sinful Santa. Nick-Santa's nephew-is a bit down, and meets Zephariel while attempting to drown his sorrows at a bar. The meeting between them sets off a spark, and we get another fated mate pair story set among zombies and the continuing necromancer problem.

For me, Nick and Zeph didn't have quite the connection that Mikhail and Jin did, but they did grow on me, especially when facing the angel court toward the end of the story and the scenes following that.

Both stories are fast-paced and quick reads. I liked reading them together in the one volume since the two stories had the connecting element of the necromancer, which made it feel more like one big story. And even though each story gives us a new couple to focus on, we still get Sam and Bob (along with Sam's ever-evolving non-humanness) and their constant love story as well.

This all makes for some fun stories with mystery, action, drama and of course love. End Street Volume 2 was a 4.5-star read for me, and I would highly recommend this book and series to M/M paranormal romance fans, especially those who like a lot of different kinds of paranormals all interacting together in the same story. This book is meant for readers 18+, mostly for the M/M sexual content. I hope Amber Kell and RJ Scott are planning a lot more stories in the series, I'm really loving this crazy mix of creatures and the maybe-kind-a-or-not-so-human Sam!

I was so eager to jump back into the End Street Detective Agency with Sam and Bob! I absolutely loved the first two cases in volume one, so naturally, I was excited to read more. I was on pins and needles to see what other nastiness the sirens might get up to, or whether they were kaput, and hopefully get a better clue as to Sam's paranormal genealogy.

The Case of the Dragon's Dilemma

It was wonderful to be back with Sam, Bob, and now their vampire daughter, Mal, who was one of the children they rescued in the second case. Mal is awesome. Mouthy, snarky, strong willed, and perfect for these two. The other little girl who was rescued and no one came to claim, is now the issue as they don't know her name or what species she is. Poor little thing.

Turns out it was Mikhail who managed to at least get her name (Eliza) from her, and then saved her when some sirens came looking to steal her back. That's how Mikhail meets Jin, captain of the Royal Guard, and a dragon. Eliza is a dragon princess and since no magic works on them unless from another dragon, now Mikhail, Sam, and Bob have to help Jin get Eliza home because it looks like one of her kind wants to hurt her. Nothing ever comes easy for this gang! grins

Yes, not easy at all. Not only does someone want Princess Eliza removed as heir to the throne, but there are so many political machinations and schemes going on at the dragon's palace, that Sam and Bob don't know which end is up. Plus Mikhail turns out to be Jin's mate, and then there are the concerns over where they would live - not life threatening, certainly, but something to be discussed... you know, after they find the traitor and save the kingdom.

Wow! Once again, these authors had me wondering and trying to guess the outcome, right until the end. I loved Smudge's explanation of how Sam is the least human human alive, but I'm keeping that information to myself... at least until Sam decides to tell the gang. But, oh Sam, why did you ever get into an agreement with a powerful familiar like Smudge without asking what the price would be beforehand? Oh, this is going to be so much fun! Not nearly as much excitement as the next case that just landed in their laps!

The Case of the Sinful Santa

The blurb for this case made me laugh out loud, so it's no wonder I was ready to jump right in. The fact that it turns out the necromancer who caused the problems for the dragons has now unleashed a zombie horde at Mal's boarding school - a school filled with young paranormals of all ages - doesn't bode well for Sam and Bob. Now that Mikhail is mated to Jin, the dragon king, he won't be along for their adventures, although I certainly hope to see him again.

Turns out Smudge knows an avenging angel he can call in for favors, which, apparently, is the only way to deal with zombies. (I'm loving Smudge more and more.) Zeph isn't entirely happy to be summoned as he was just getting kissed by Nick, whom he met in a bar. Having Nick show up at the school throws Zeph for a loop, until he discovers that Nick is Santa's nephew, and unlike the rest of the family, he can sense areas of despair and hopelessness. Voilá, the school and the zombies.

It gets very exciting when Danjal, Zeph's cousin and Hart's mate, do a locator spell on the necromancer, only to have it be bounced back at him, almost killing Dan if it hadn't been for Zeph and Nick. The only way that could have happened is if the necromancer is using celestial magic, for there is nothing more powerful than angels and demons. On a positive note, however, Sam is able to match his first familiar that Smudge brought him to Dan. Remember the price Sam owed for Smudge's help? Well, Sam's home is about to become a halfway house for unmatched familiars. I laughed. A lot.

And again, the authors knocked it out of the park! I adored Nick and Zeph even more for the struggle they endured to be together forever. It was wonderful to see Dan and Hart, and I'm always thrilled with Sam and Bob. Now that I have some idea about what Sam is, watching the evolution of his powers will be quite entertaining!

Who doesn't like a cat, a grumpy gargoyle and a dragon. I love Bob and Sam together. They have a good chemistry. Book one leads to two with angels and elves. I didn't realize there was so many paranormal creatures. I love Bob and his love for Sam until the end of time. Sam always seems to attract all the paranormal entities and doesn't have a clue as to why. I thought the book was very cute and funny.

Stephanie GooglyEyes says

I love aspects of this series and other aspects, not so much. I think the instant fated mate aspect is done really sloppy. It could be given to the fact that they're short books, but I'm just not very convinced. What is saving this series for me is all the characters and how they all kind of circle around Sam. As each story continues, even though they're not all fully about Sam, we get a little more information on what's happening with him. It's kind of a neat aspect to a PNR story and his charm bracelet is really cool.

These specific stories have dragons, angels/demons and Christmas elves, which are my favorite. I can't wait to see what else becomes of Nick.

In the meantime, we've got a gargoyle mystery to solve. (And that's why I can stop reading these :))

This volume was fun. I laughed out loud. Who doesn't like a cat, a grumpy gargoyle and a dragon. Again I love Bob and Sam together. They have a good dynamic. I loved how Mikhail has someone. Book one leads to two with angels and elves. I didn't realize there was so many paranormal creatures. Again Bob and Sam had me from the get go. I love Bob and his love for Sam until the end of time. Sam is Sam and attracts all paranormal entities and doesn't have a clue as to why. Then you have Sudge who followed him from the last series as his familiar. Like i said, it was cute and laughed out loud a couple of times. There are 2 books in this volume, and they are quick to read.
