The Librarian's Bane Angel Lu , Katelyn Gelle

The Librarian's Bane connects imagination with a hint of mythology. Three girls—Katrina, Annabelle, and Holly—venture into a secret world to find three purple keys. In this world, unicorns and centaurs are regular creatures. Dragons and phoenixes fly like birds. Ferocious creatures follow the girls as they receive clues from prophecy givers. A friend turns into an enemy. An enemy turns into a friend. Can the girls trust the mysterious land?

I received this book as a giveaway on Goodreads. I have a nine year old that I thought would like this book or maybe even one of his friends. I was very impressed by the fact it was written by two fourth graders (They are in fifth now.) I found it a little difficult to read. there are some wonderful descriptions of clothing and the surrounding areas but the flow is a bit choppy at times. I felt like the story was a little cartoon-ish as well. This book may be good for readers who are in elementary school, but my son was not interested. Good job for the authors but I don't think I or my family was the best demographic and I didn't feel that way when I first read the description.

WON ON GOODREADS. What a wonderful little book. These little ladies have a great imagination.. I look forward to their next book. Every now and then the story lost me - but then I got back on track quickly, besides this is Angel & Katelyn's 1st book - not bad for 5th graders. The chapters are short and easy to read.
