I love watching the Twilight Zone, but even more i love reading the original stories. Often they are even better and have amazing twists and ironies that were changed or removed from the tv shows. Rod Serling and all his writers for the TZ series had amazing gifts for story-telling.

A great selection of the stories that Rod Serling wrote for his show " The Twilight Zone". Written with rich language and moving details, each story shows the nature of the human species in many different situations, beyond reality, beyond fantasy, all of them straight from... The Twilight Zone!

The book I'm actually reading wasn't here - it is Rod Serling's Twilight Zone adapted by Walter B. Gibson. This was as close as I could get.

I finally finished this one - a collection of 23 Twilight Zone stories written by Rod Serling. I love the series, I didn't love the book. Some of the stories here were made into Twilight Zone episodes, and some were not. A few were pretty good - like The Edge of Doom and Ghost Train, but it could have been skipped.

I got this book as a souvenir of Tower of Terror in DisneyWorld. It is a collection of stories. I like Serling's writing, he is good with description. I liked the first story best. Too bad in a way, as most of the others were good, but didn't grab me the same way. Not every story is a gem, but he is always trying to make a point about society or humanity. I would recommend it.

I appreciate what science fiction has done for society. It has made us, as humans, branch out into a different way of thinking. This book has it all, from UFOs to different dimensions. It's a wonderful read and I'd recommend it to almost anyone with a brain!

Classics, just like the show.

Patrick Nichol says

This is a gem. All of these stories were written by Serling himself, a master craftsman of the imaginary world. All critics of genre fiction should make this required reading before passing judgment.

Rhoda says

I am not a science fiction fan but Serling kept me spellbound.

The strange and bizarre fifth dimension beyond the boundaries of imagination. A realm of fantasy, science fiction, horror, terror, suspense, and mystery. The characters, setting, and genre change, but there's a constant in this incredible world of make-believe known as The Twilight Zone. Rod Serling, creator, producer, narrator, host, and writer. Of the 156 series episodes, he wrote 92 of them. The Twilight Zone: Complete Stories contains 19 short stories written by Serling which became episodes of the series...

Really a fun read, especially if you've seen all the episodes. You can illustrate it as you read.

Aaron Rodriguez says

Serling's complete stories of The Twilight Zone is a wonderful, imaginative compilation of creative (science) fiction. The stories are descriptive, immersive and hold one's attention. Furthermore the stories provoke a reverence for an author who's body of work transcends temporal dimensionality; years later they still offer life lessons and insight that aren't bound to Serling's time period. Serling's work is applicable in today's age (circa 2015) and leaves one feeling appreciative and satisfied that works of literature can travel across the decades and still remain relevant in a technological, developed age. As a reader, I felt transfixed and enamored with each scene in every story. I couldn't help but feel the anticipatory excitement that comes with good story telling. The stories captivated my imagination. I don't know what else to say other than that I highly recommend this book for fans of The Twilight Zone and for anyone who's remotely interested in story telling. Rod Serling is a literary genius, you won't be disappointed.
