Amazing!!! Such a good book filled with info and clearly detailed explanations and examples. It is an excellent teaching tool and should be a staple in every home. Personally, it increased my faith and beliefs even more, as well as my education. I recently took a C.A.R.E. class and got to smell all these oils for myself too. This would be a great gift for Christians, as well as anyone interested in historical healing. I highly recommend it.

Started out with a lot of good info...then at the end it took an abrupt turn to a very strange sales pitch.

I found much of this book incredibly closed minded and offensive. The author actually believes that Doctors and modern medications are against God. I disagree 100% and believe that God has lead men and women in the research and development of many life saving medical technologies, including medications (he calls pharmaceutical drugs- satanic).

The author seems to believe that God did not mean for us to advance in medicine since the Garden of Eden.

Much of the book is a "how to" in advertising his program of how to heal with oils from the Bible.

I bought the book thinking it was going to be a nice history/ reference book of the ways essential oils were employed for healing in Biblical times.

There is a very nice reference in the back of the book that explains all the oils mentioned in the Bible, their properties and what scripture verses they are cited in.

A fascinating book! I had no idea how powerful essential oils are, and the role they played in the Bible. I highly recommend this.

This was fascinating. I want to adapt suggested the class presentation to doTERRA essential oils and start sharing it. I learned many new things.

This book takes a lot of focus to read, lots of science and biblical history! But I really enjoyed the education!

I highly recommend this book, maybe read it with someone else who is also interested in EO's!

Not much actual essential oil information. I found some of the authors statements strange. I found it heavy on religion, but then some points hard to take - such as the suggestion that it was the oils Jesus used that healed. Oils might work fine but it took a bit more than oil. It was faith, as Jesus told his disciples. Hey, oils are great, but Geez.

I love the new approach to health care that this book offers. It teaches that we must include God and His creations more in our health practices. I agree in full that separation of God and medicine is dangerous and yet prevalent in our society. I have tried essential oils myself and on my children and they work wonders and are so much safer than synthetic drugs. Pharmaceutical companies don't want us to rely on these divinely created medicines because they can not legally be patented and there would be no profit for them. I am really into history as well and although I have read these verses many times in the Bible, I had no idea about the specific uses of the anointing oils! Great read for member of any religion and anyone interested in putting power back into the home and becoming more self reliant. P.S. Do take with a grain of salt, I don't think that All traditional docs are bad news, and I do also believe that some modern medicines are gifts from God too! I just think an integrative approach to both is best.

Slightly predictable take on the bible view of oils but with some hidden gems. Was worth the read still; different perspective on them.

Powerful message and highly educational. Eye opening and transforming! Relevant for all people.

While I thought there were some interesting views (especially how they are gifts from God) and the history of the oils and their uses was fascinating, I was disgusted by the author's very strong views of modern medicine. Yes there are some changes that could be done to make it better including incorporating more "original" / natural medicine and that is why many people are turning to natural medicine now, but how many of us have benefited from modern medicine at one time or another in our lives? How about vaccines that have helped fight polio, smallpox, etc? I have met many very caring people who devote their lives to human and animal medicine. To say they are all money grubbing is a very wide and sad statement to make. If someone truly wanted to be rich in money, they would go into entrepreneurship and business. But to be rich in your heart? That only comes from doing something you love, and most (of course not all, but most!) people in the health industry have their hearts in the right place. For this reason, I gave the book 2 stars.

I love the concept of this book, and there are some beautiful truths in what is written. Unfortunately, the opinion of the writer is perverted by his bias towards an MLM essential oil company and I find a lot of what he includes in that regard to be complete hogwash.
