Enslaved Jaid Black

His glowing blue eyes summoned the primitive weapon from her grasp. Shuddering with fear, she realized she had just lost the only thing standing between her freedom and becoming... Enslaved. "ENSLAVED, the third story in Jaid Black's entertaining and sinfully erotic Trek Mi Q'an series, is outstanding. Kil has been an intriguing character since his first appearance in the series, and I was extremely pleased that his story lives up to all my expectations. His lifemate, Marty, is humorous and outrageous and just the heroine to tame him. Once again Jaid Black has blended humor, science fiction, fantasy and eroticism into a pleasing whole. I... can hardly wait for the next installment in the series." -Terrie Figueroa, Romance Reviews Today

I thought the main storyline was really short, but it had a bunch of other interweaving plots here.

Dallass says

Why?!

I am being such a glutton for punishment (and not in a good way) continuing on reading this stuff. Once again, the main protagonist is feisty and fun, but the whole male dominating society - especially when it comes to sexuality and sex - is enough for me to throw my e-reader across the room.

I read a bunch of this author's books, took a break and then thought I'd read something from her again. This book was really good. It was very funny in parts and a little sad. I read the book after this first, so I know how some of these story lines pan out. But this didn't spoil the book at all.

Marty is sucked into some kind of energy thingy and sent to a parallel but fast moving timewise universe. She ends up on a planet where women are dominant and men are subordinate. She's then trained in fighting so even though she's a foot shorter than the woman she thinks she's tough. When the king visits this planet, she yelling slurs at him and flipping him off, which he thinks is funny. He captures her as war booty and then finds out there's something special about her. I'd recommend this book.

I liked it can't wait to read about Kara and Cam's story. Although this isn't their story, the interaction between them both has my lips watering. However, this book was enjoyable, didn't think I would like it even though I love the series.GOOD READ

3 in the series

Kil and Marty/Mari main couple

Warning this starts off at a dark part. The rape and murder of the late Empress Jana. Her son Kil unable to help thus causing him to avoid emotions and finding his Scared Mate.

Martha "Marty" is originally from 1967 Earth time when she gets sucked into a time-warp thing that ages her 10 years as well as transporting her to the Planet Tron. She is saved by warrior women of the village Wani. Which lucky her is, opposite of Tryston, ruled by women where men are slaves.

Kil enslaves her and adds her to his harem of bound slaves unaware that she turns out to be his Scared Mate. So if you've read the previous stories you know it's going to get fun. Making a sex slave of a Scared Mate who is straight from the feminist moment only adds to the fun.

Even better when she runs with her best friend and freely released bound slave Ora. While on the run we run into a certain character long thought dead.

Bound slaves, time-travel to "alien" world, orgasms aplenty, exhibition, hedonist and so much more. Highly recommended if you enjoy reading stories containing that listed.

Jazzysmum says

Great to have Kil's story - a tortured warrior who found his groovy mate. Enjoyed the interweaving plots of which I hope will all be completed.

Jane Stewart says

This wasn't my favorite but it was still worth reading as part of the Trek series.

In this story, Kil gets Marty, a bra-burning feminist from the 1960s. No way is she going to be the submissive servant and one of his harem girls. He captures her in a battle and makes her a bound servant to him, not realizing she is his sacred mate. She later runs away from him. I loved the scene when he found her, page 124.

This book also begins the following stories which continue in future books. Kara is a teen and is pledged to Cam once she turns 25. She plans to run away from home and him so she can experience independent life before being wed. Dari is 14 and is pledged to Gio and is planning to run away also. Kari lives on planet Galis and meets Death, they are strongly attracted to each other.

Stars: 4.5

Overall: I was so excited to start reading this book and i was disappointed. The prologue of this book broke my heart into a million pieces, but I was able to understand Kil SO MUCH BETTER. Also Marty was just the heroine this series needed. She is smart, witty and down right dangerous. I am still a little confused on how she ended up on Wani, but maybe that will be explained in a later book. The love connection between them was fun, exciting and VERY lusty. I can't wait to see what "hope" their future will bring.

Characters: Kil & Marty (Mari)

Series Cont: YES! Cam & Kara =D

Recommend: OMG YES! Well if your a feminist then No lol

Kym says

Loved it!!!

There was so much going on. So many different stories all wrapped up in one. Kil and Mari, Death and Kari, Gio and Dari. Budding relationships, scandal, runaway princesses.

Kil and Death suffer from very similar problems. They are both blind to what is right in front of them. Kil is practically allergic to love. He has spent his entire life numb to his feelings, until the little runaway Mari breaks through to his icy heart. Mari wants nothing more than to love Kil but fears he will never love her back the way she deserves.

Death find pleasure in another little runaway, Kari. He realizes too late that he should have made her his and took her home. As soon as he turned his back she was gone. Kari was not accustom to dominating warriors. On her planet women stood above men. So the surprise at feeling the need to submit to Death, even though it went against everything she new, made her leave her home and the love she could have had.

Gio feels shamed by his betrothed Dari. Dari, her sister and cousin has become involved in their own little scandal. Dari refuses to be given away to a warrior just because her uncle (the emperor) wished to mend an alliance. Gio feels that something else is wrong and has to keep her close.

Now that Kil and Mari has come together and are living peacefully, who will be next to complete their hearts wishes... Death or Gio? Or maybe neither?!?!?!

Started off okay but as we really got into the book it was very interesting. I enjoyed it !

I really like Kil having a story, and his match with Marty is really good. I like the stories that the female escapes the man's grasp and the male finally realizes he loves the girl and pursues her. I also like the Death, who is determined to find his mate since the first story finally gets one, but not for long, so I expect their story.

The only thing that I can nag about is how Marty said "groovy" so many times. There are many slang that 60's say but Marty only says that word (also "dominant paradigm"). If I read one more "groovy" in her dialog, I'm gonna rip my hairs out.hehe. Their ending and climax is really touching and I'm happy that Kil have his ending for i'm really interested in his character.

There are also the side story of how Kara and Jana escape Trystonn and how Dari discovers the "evil" one, which is interesting to read in the next book.

Lula Pantofle says

The story of Kil and Marti was a bit better than the previous book. This story seemed to include a lot more side stories too which livened it up a bit. I think I thought that Kil would be a bit different than the others based on his previous appearances but he was pretty similar to the others. There was a little more storyline and world building here which was good plus I liked Marti as a character. I liked that she was from the sixties and was more of a feminist (if it's at all possible to be one in these books), yet she embraced everything in an openminded way by the end.

Erin says

Not my cup of tea. Very short, the story didn't flow and I found the characters repulsive.

Holly says

Kil is constantly trying to avoid and avenge his past by starting and looking for wars. One such missions has him finding Marty, a woman sucked into their time from the 60s and her bra burning protest. She is lucky to be brought to one of the few areas where the women are in control and they take her under their wing and teach her how to fight and defend their land. Kil sees her and must take her to be a 'bound servant', or the spoils of war so to speak. Obviously Marty doesn't deal with this well and refuses to see him, especially after witnessing his debauchery. But he keeps calling for her night after night, even refusing the other women (very rare in this planet/series of books). They finally get together and develop a bond and he even stays with only her, ignoring the other women altogether. When his brother needs help he has to leave and Marty decides to escape with one of her friends there. But unbeknownst to her (and somewhat to Kil) she is his mate and he can now find her relatively easily. Kil luckily realizes he is a huge idiot that he didn't recognize their bond, but still annoying that it took him so damn long. More of the story of the daughters who are already set with certain mates is shown and is pretty depressing. Don't understand why their moms don't talk to them more and tell them that it isn't some horrible thing. So that annoyed me and made me not blame them for wanting to take off. Can't believe Zor's decision, thought he had kind of changed a bit under Kyra's influence and it's obvious bad shit is going to happen because of his decision. Not my favorite book, but learn more about some of Kil's history and the whole deal with how the kid's age and the customs there.

Interesting and strange

I am not quite sure what to think of this next installment of the series. I love Marti's strength and perseverance! Kil had a lot to learn about love. It's the other things happening around them that are a little disconcerting. I'm not sure if I will be able to move onto book 4.
