Heroes for All Times (Magic Tree House Fact Tracker #28)
by Mary Pope Osborne, Natalie Pope Boyce, Sal Murdocca (Illustrations)

This is a companion book to Magic Treehouse #51, High Time for Heroes.

Jack and Annie travel throughout the world and meet very influential historical figures.

In High Time for Heroes, our favorite time-travelling kids meet these people without knowing who they are and how they influenced the world in which we live.

The Fact Tracker Heroes for all Times puts these characters in perspective, letting the reader know the interesting story of each hero.

This book is a great addition to the the Magic Tree House collection; it makes learning the history of six very influential people fun!

Another fascinating fact filled edition in the Magic Tree House companion books. Mary Pope Osborne picked several of my own personal heroes plus added a new interest to my radar. Sadly, before reading this I didn't know much about Gandhi, I have already checked out additional reading material on this peaceful, simple man for further research for myself and my daughter. I wish we had been reading these wonderful companion books through our entire Magic Tree House ride, but we will slowly go back and read them all eventually.

This is a well-written nonfiction book for middle grade readers. It features six historical figures: Florence Nightingale, Harriet Tubman, Susan B. Anthony, Mahatma Gandhi, Martin Luther King Jr., and John Muir. There are photos as well as black & white illustrations and tips from Jack and Annie. In addition to facts, this book seeks to inspire readers to strive to become heroes themselves by following their own inner light, being brave, and never giving up.

The final part of the book makes suggestions for doing further research. Sources are suggested and lists are included. There is a complete and easy to use index that allows readers to focus on just one person or topic. This is the fact tracker companion to "Heroes for All Times" and I would highly recommend it.

Read it with the children and we liked it. Good intro to some great heroes. Just enough info to keep it short and sweet but get good information and pique their interest for further research. We will check out more of the fact checker books.

This was great! It includes: Florence Nightingale Harriet Tubman Susan B. Anthony Mahatma Gandhi Martin Luther king Jr. John Muir. also a mini chapter on Rosa Parks. The person I loved was Harriet Tubman--a young, brave slave who helped others. She once got hit with a 2 pound iron weight in the head. Harriet didn't come-to for 2 days.

To be a hero it takes a big heart, a big soul, and the courage to help others.

This book explains to readers, in depth, the history of the characters in the fictional Magic Tree House books.

Genre: Information text because it's primary focus is to inform the reader.

Writing Traits:

1-Organizational- This book has the information presented in a very organized fashion. It has an index so students can find exactly what they are looking for. It offers websites for students to find more information. It offers tips for students when they are doing research.

2- Conventions- This book has about each person. It also has bold headings within the chapters highlighting different parts of the person's life. It also has little snippets of information along the side of the pages.

Classroom use:

Writing -Students could use this to model how to write when they are writing to inform. It shows how to break the events of someone's life up into important parts. The back of the book is full of tips on how to do research. I love this idea because Magic Tree House books are something our students are familiar with in turn makes this book easier to relate to. One of the tips is "you don't have to read the whole book." Students can see how the writer broke this book into chapters by subject so if they were researching or writing about one of these people they really would only have to read the chapter they are interested in.

Reading- I would have the students find the Magic Tree House book that went along with one of the characters in this book. I would let them choose who was someone that interested them. You could go a step further and have the students find other books and information about the person they chose.

Heroes For All Times(Magic Tree House Fact Tracker #28)by Mary Pope Osborne is a great informational book! In this book there are six chapters of 6 great people in history.Those people are Florence Nightingale,Harriet Tubman,Susan B. Anthony, Martin Luther King Jr., and John Muir. I think it is important to read informational books because it teaches you about history and why some things are the way they are today. What I mean by this is these people made a difference in the world.For example, Florence Nightingale is known as The Lady With The Lamp because she would comfort the soldiers at night. She is a very good person and role model to me because of her actions.This book is similar to other informational books because they talk about events that occurred or people who were once alive. If I had to recommend this book to someone it would be to history teachers or people who enjoy history overall.

The environmentalist at the end gets majorly shorted - how could he possibly be considered a hero coming after MLK, Susan B Anthony, Harriet Tubman, and Ghandi? Yeah, yeah, preserving our natural resources is important...but is it as important as freeing an entire people?!
