First of all, I won the book in a giveaway here.

Took a lot to finish it... not because it wasn't catching or captivating. Cause it was !! (kind of like a trainwreck....)

The problem I had with it was that there was no actual plot, no action, no meaning... Basicaly, the book started nowhere and went nowhere fast.

It also seemed like the target audience is really, really small. I could not recommend this book to a child (NO WAY !! for every reason), to a teen (because of the meaningless cursing, savage violence and sex reference, not to mention drugs references thrown around in the whole book), to an elder (because I actually respect my elders and would not want to be associated with the book) or to a slightly less smart person (the same reasons mentioned for a teen). And no friend of mine has the kind of humor, sarcasm, etc. to be interested or to make me risk the recommendation.

I actually feel guilty for not liking it better because I won it. Maybe someone else from those participating would have loved it .... Oh, well...

This book is good for younger kids. It did help to capture interest of younger ones (at least to my little one). If you are looking for different variety of bedtime stories, this would be good.
