*"Uncle," Croissant said, "the fridge is in trouble!
A mystery stench turned a whole shelf to rubble!
I'm the last hope or the fridge will be lost!
Help me or else we'll be cooked, served, and sauced."*

There's a stinky stench in the fridge—and our favorite foodie friends must solve a smelly mystery! Sir French Toast's nephew, Inspector Croissant, begs him and Lady Pancake for help in finding the source of the foul odor. Could it be the devious Baron Von Waffle? A fetid fish lurking in the bottom of Corn Chowder Lake? Featuring the same delectable wordplay and delicious art that won critical raves for Lady Pancake & Sir French Toast—there's even an actual red herring—his fun follow-up is an absolutely tasty treat for kids!

Bookish says

We are huge Josh Funk fans in my house and we couldn't wait for his new book, The Case of the Stinky Stench, to come out. How appropriate that it was published May 2nd during Children's Book Week! Similar to Funk's Lady Pancake and Sir French Toast, this is a tale that takes place in a refrigerator. Yes, a refrigerator. (Who knew there was so much activity in there?!?) Lady Pancake and Sir French Toast are back again, and we are introduced to Inspector Croissant. He is on a mission to find out what is stinking up the place. Will he figure it out and save the day? Funk's rhymes and Brendan Kearney's illustrations will certainly bring a smile to your face. This is a mystery for the family to enjoy. —Gerilyn (<https://www.bookish.com/articles/frid...>)

My adult children and I loved this refrigerator raid as much as my granddaughter! Lady Pancake and Sir French Toast have been called from their vacation to help Inspector Croissant solve the case of THE STINKY STENCH! Yuk! WHAT is that smell? Is Baron Von Waffle to blame, again? This time, new characters emerge, and old neighbors reappear to travel the fridge in search of the culprit. Make sure you keep up with the clues...surprises await! A stinky refrigerator search has never been so much fun!

"It was good-riffic" says Grace. It's pretty good, "the red herring was a just a bad clue" was an especially nice touch!

We loved the first book - Lady Pancake and Sir French Toast - and this is the sequel.

It still has that great rhyme and meter scheme (very fun to read out loud) and sophisticated vocabulary. It also has a lot of different kinds of food (not limited to the kid friendly fare).

The plot is amusing also - would appeal to mystery / detective story lovers.

The artwork is also terrific.

Kids voted to give it 5 stars and wanted re-reads.

I think it is for older preschoolers and elementary students as it is a little longer with sophisticated vocabulary.

This just came up in my Goodreads feed, so I thought I'd pass on to all my friends with young children how awesome this picture book is! It's so fun for me to read aloud and my kids enjoy it as well. If you like this one, definitely try the first one as well.

Each year my family reads all the Goodreads-award-nominated picture books, and we have been doing this for years. Everyone rates each book and adds a comment and it may (or may not) affect my overall rating. This is book #8 of 2017.

Tara: 3 stars. Haha!

Harry (12): 3 stars. The drawings look so good, I want to eat them!

Hank (11): 3.6 stars. I like the imagination in this story.

Lyra (10): 4 stars. Good children's book! Lots of imaginative ideas, and it makes me hungry. Yuck to the moldy fruitcake, though. I liked the map in the back!

Dave: 3 stars. :) Lady Pancake and Sir French Toast star. Busy, goofy art, not my favorite style. The story is a mystery: What IS that stinky stench in the kitchen?! Lots of hijinks. To help keep track (in sort of Clue boardgames fashion), illustrator Brendan Kearney includes a map including Taco Bridge, Trifle Tower, Marshmallow Coast, Applesauce River, things like that. I admit I had a hard time following it, but as you can see above, the kids liked it, which is all that really matters.

Serenity says

I'm going to hold off on rating this. I want to read it to my kiddos. They looooved the first book.

Jana says

This fun, rhyming picture book is a terrific follow up to Lady Pancake & Sir French Toast. Everyone's favorite breakfast duo are trying to relax on a much needed vacation, when Inspector Croissant summons them to help him figure out the source of a nasty smell in the fridge. With rollicking, rhyming text and hilarious artwork, readers are taken on another crazy odyssey through the refrigerator and run into some old and new friends in the process. Young readers will definitely enjoy hearing this again and again at story time.

Tricia says

This is such a great sequel to the first book--Lady Pancake and Sir French Toast! Josh's rhymes are once again spot on, which makes this an easy and fun book to read aloud. The illustrations are so detailed and the fold out page that shows the whole fridge at the end is a hit with my first graders. This book will get a lot of re-reads!

Matthew Winner says

Inspector Croissant's first case reeks of mystery, adventure, and nefarious plans. A savory sequel for any reader with an appetite for sleuthing!

Jessie says

Love it.

Michele Knott says

I continue to be amazed by Mr. Funk's ability to write rhyming lines that are catching, rhythmic and clever. A wonderful sequel.
