Kidnapped from dying Earth by the heinous Tonan race, Piper is locked in a small cell, deprived of light and human companionship and tormented on a daily basis. When the door to her hell opens unexpectedly Piper is blinded by the light and walks headlong into a massively built creature. She is tossed over a shoulder, taken on the wildest ride of her life then placed into a healing pool.

Jago is a four-hundred-year-old immortal who has never seen a living breathing female before, but he knows of their existence. Their ship was headed to the planet Earth to see if they could find these rare human gifts when they accidentally stumbled onto the Tonan vessel. Desperate to find a mate Jago was thrilled when the little female walked right into his arms as though she was waiting for him. Unfortunately Jago's leader, Cobra, has asked to impregnate Piper, thinking Jago too young.

Ultimately, the choice is Piper's. Who will she choose?

....and here is why. I admire Piper's fortitude and her will to survive and I like Jago he is a lovely guy. Although I wish we got a little more in depth with him as I felt we just skimmed his story.

But, Cobra, HUH? What are you doing and why, why, why? You throw me off with your need/desire to mess with others....what about your mate? What happened to mating for life and how does Cobra's lady feel about his desire to have children with other females or for that matter join in on a fantasy??? I mean I know she was not his heart's mate but, still how about a little honor to your commitment, you did take her as yours!

Another good edition to the New World Series.

This book was as chock full of happenings as the first two were. The Castian's physiology is ridiculously complex! I don't understand the support character Cobra's intentions in this book all that well but it was an interesting plot twist I guess. I think he needs his own book though.

The writing is still very fast paced and so far each book starts out written with time and detail but then somewhere in the middle it just starts rushing through the story. Information is just handed to you. Usually by Cobra. For a species that lives for forever he seems to be the only one ever around with the answers. Cobra is Johnny on the spot! Smdh.

Still I like what this author is selling with these sci fi stories. Adventure, exploration, wishfulness and HEA's.

I'm off to read book 4. Enjoy.

Les Chroniques Aléatoires says

On a commencé cette série avec des humains qui fuit leur planète, puis avec des aliens qui viennent chercher des survivantes... Cette fois-ci il fallait bien innover un peu et proposer un nouveau décors à l'histoire. Une humaine kidnapper par les méchant, au bout du rouleau, sauvée par un Castien sexy qui ne demande rien de mieux que la belle lui fasse son éducation sexuelle. Que demande de plus le peuple ?!

Piper change un peu des héroïnes précédentes mises en scène par l'auteure. C'est une victime, qui n'est pas loin de passé l'arme à gauche et pour qui il ne reste plus rien. Elle va mettre un bon moment avant de s'affirmer, de revenir en partie celle qu'elle était et enfin tourner la page. Elle a du mal à espérer, à faire preuve de courage, mais bien évidemment, il y a un beau gosse dans le coin qui va la faire changer. Jago est un Castien comme les autres, il ne se démarque pas vraiment : combattif, sûr de lui, viril et pourtant doux et tendre avec la femme de sa vie. Il est assez amusant de le voir perdu lorsqu'il n'arrive pas à séduire Piper. Au final, c'est grâce à ses oppositions avec Cobra qu'il se révèle, devient plus ambitieux, agressif.

L'histoire en soit est assez simple : Piper doit se reconstruire, passer outre sa haine pour les aliens et Jago doit la conquérir. En parallèle, la guerre entre Tonan et Castien fait rage, devient plus violente et cruelle. On commence aussi à voir qu'un vainqueur se dessine. Mais ne nous voilons pas la face, la raison pour laquelle on lit cette nouvelle, c'est pour savoir quand et comment Jago va finir par la mettre dans son lit ! Et vu comment c'est partit, il va y avoir du boulot.

Quand on pense en avoir fini avec tout ces aliens plein de testostérone et bestialité, il y en a encore. C.J. Scholey revient avec une nouvelle trame, qui fait preuve d'un peu plus d'originalité mais la romance en soit, les scènes érotiques, même les personnages nous donnent une impression de déjà. En plus de cela il faut compter sur certains personnages récurrents tels que Cobra ou Rask. Bref, une fois encore, on n'est pas vraiment dépayser, étrange pour de la science-fiction...

When Piper is kidnapped from dying Earth (weep, weep) by the heinous Tonan race, she's locked in a cell, deprived of light and human companionship and tormented by a Tonan on a daily basis. Jago is a four-hundred-year-old immortal virgin who has never seen a living breathing female before, but he wants her. Then Cobra his leader and already mated has the nerve to ask to impregnate Piper, because it is near their 400 year mating season to get a female child, thinking Jago too young. Yuk, she chooses Jago and surprises everyone with her choice.

Stars: 4

Overall: Piper is aboard a Tolan war ship and she is being abused as others are around her. One day she is rescued and that's when she meets Jago. Their mating goes good, but when they are unable to conceive, Cobra gets worried and tells Piper and Jago that he will do it for them. After a bit of drama from the bad guys and some ass kicking Piper and Jago finally make the magic happen and they get a big surprise that hasn't happened in a long time.

Pros: I love the idea for this story and I loved how the series has progressed, so have the mating bonds between each couple. It seems that each mate has their own special uniqueness about them.

Cons: I'm going to say this again, like I did the other books in the series. I'm really tired of reading about how their women died and what happened after it. I feel that if you have already read the first two books, there is no real need to keep repeating that they have already told you. I also thought it was a little creepy how Corba wanted to mate with Piper, I wanted to tell the guy to back up and give the couple a damn chance.

Great series!

Complicated Contradiction says

There was way too much explaining going on than actual events. I thought mating made them faithful. Bad Cobra.

Chappy says

I loved this one which is no surprise since I'm enjoying this whole series.

Something about the Castians is so endearing and I can't get enough. Although Cobra seemed a little insensitive to me. I mean what would his human mate think of his offers to other human females?

The Tonans are so evil, it's hard for me to find any redeeming qualities. Because of them, so many human females have been put through hell.

Jago is a hunk of course and I sense a bit of a kinky side to him. I also think that Piper is more than willing to explore these options...

Asteropê says

The Cobra thing annoyed me the most. On one hand I understand it. Time is running out, they need to have babies conceived now for them to be female, but on the other hand, it comes off badly and makes Cobra seem like an ass. It'd feel a bit better if it were coming from an older, unmated male that we haven't met yet. But Cobra is mated (for life!), has a new daughter and step-kids now. There was no indication that this was okay with Cobra's mate, either. Perhaps she'd be understanding, it is after all about the survival of their species and they need all the females they can get, but without knowing his mate's view on this, it comes off as (thoughts of) cheating and wrong.

Also, Cobra was going on about how Jago is too young and inexperienced, but he's 400 years old, the same age as Rask and Dasks and their warrior-brother/mate's from books 1 & 2 were when they mated and Cobra had no issue with them mating "so young." So what changed?

Kristy Mills says

This is the third book in the New World series and I was really intrigued with the beginning. Piper is kept in a dark cell and tormented by the Tonans before Jago finds and rescues her. Because of where she was found Cobra thinks Jago should let him impregnate Piper because he has more control and experience. That's not the part I found intriguing. It was her being in a dark cell and tormented. I expected that to make more of an impact on her than it did.

I did not, however like that Cobra was willing to sleep with her. I guess I was under the wrong impression about mates in this series. I thought they were more possessive and hmmm monogamous. But I think feel like the author is introducing ideas to open up possibilities for her next books. And they didn't sit well with me.

Cherise says

Ok, I hate this one. It is bordering on sordid for me to be honest. The h and H are being coerced and the h kept pushing our H away for not too much of a valid reason I can figure out.

The whole you need to get preggo pronto and I don't care by whom thing just turns me off in a big way. Like the h is nothing but a brood mare, and it is fine to have whoever to have sex with her so long as she is with child. The whole supervision thing is another turn off for me. I think this probably is common and supposed to be a turn on for some erotica books, yet everything is not to both parties' wishes, making this very hard to stomach and quite frankly, gross, especially when these two seem to have quite a connection and doesnt need outside interference. I cannot reconcile a one mate for life race will be so ok about infidelity, to be honest, and based on the premise that the h needs to get preggo by anyone pronto, I cannot help but cringe or read beyond what is written imagining some upcoming scene with sexy times featuring some om whenever one of them is nearby.

I also do not get why the h kept pushing our H away. She essentially admits to being afraid of loneliness, so while she quickly figures out she more or less needs to adapt to and live in this world by having a man, it doesn't make sense for her to not want him mated to her, considering she is doing everything else with him already.

I guess this whole book's premise just isn't my cuppa. I still enjoy learning more of the world and am looking forward to seeing if we can know more about the other race.
